

Students enrolled in our two-week Business Communication, Leadership & American Culture Program will gain business communication skills, improve levels of conversational English proficiency, and an understanding the essentials of American business. In addition to a challenging and active learning experience, corporate visits and cultural excursions are planned throughout the two weeks.

The program consists of small intensive English classes taught by Montclair State University faculty and the opportunity to practice English skills with American university students. Skills needed for business communication, corporate interviews, and managerial leadership are developed in our Business classes and a variety of interactive activities. After successfully completing the program, students receive a certificate from the School of Business at Montclair State University.

Students will participate in corporate visits to companies in the New York Metropolitan area. Potential companies are from selected industries such as financial, pharmaceutical, cosmetics and skin care, software designing, and the professional sports and entertainment field.

Students will also have the opportunity to experience guided cultural excursions in the New York City area (including: city tours, United Nations,
